School board members to be recognized for service, leadership

The Cumberland County Public Schools are joining the state's 172 other public school systems to mark Kentucky's 20th observation of January as School Board Member Recognition Month.

"When it comes to devotion to what's in the best interest of our students, no community has a finer group of citizen leaders than Mr. Lovell Grider, Mr. Danny Lee, Mr. Ben Sells, Mr. Terry Riley, and Mr. Greg Smith," said Superintendent Dr. Kirk Biggerstaff. "Many people understand that our board is responsible for setting and balancing a budget, establishing the directional policy for the school system, deciding on the school year calendar, and acting on concerns raised by the students, employees, parents and taxpayers in our community," Dr. Biggerstaff said. "However, most people have no concept of the countless hours each of our board members spend in study outside of their regular meetings, attending student events, and listening to constituents. I'm proud to serve alongside each of them."

Allen Kennedy, president of the Kentucky School Boards Association and a two-term member of the Hancock County Board of Education, said local board members he has met in traveling the state put the emphasis in the right place.

"Every day, there are nearly 44,000 teachers and more than 678,000 students in 1,223 schools who are striving for a simple but dynamic goal: learning new and exciting concepts. They do that using the systems and the resources that are available because of the work of 871 men and women who make hard but necessary decisions," Kennedy said. "There are many things in life we can't control, but one thing for sure we can control, individually and as a board, is how hard we work to succeed."

Cumberland County Board of Education members will be formally recognized for their service at the January 8, 2015 board meeting at the central office beginning at 6 p.m.

Students score #1 in state on K-PREP science test

Current Cumberland County Middle School students scored #1 in the state of Kentucky among middle schools on last year's K-PREP science test. The students at CCMS are doing some BIG things academically! We'd like to recognize them, their parents, and teacher Brittany Smith for this outstanding accomplishment. We are expecting the extraordinary at CCMS and believe even bigger things are ahead for our school and students.

Letters to the Editor must be on subjects relevant to the readers of this publication. The Cumberland County News reserves the right to edit or reject any letter for brevity, content and clarity and to limit frequent writers. Please keep letters to 400 words or less. Form letters and mass e-mail letters will not be published. Letters should not contain libelous statements. Letters endorsing or opposing a political candidate are considered advertising and will not be published as Letters to the Editor. All letters must be signed by the writer and must include the full address and telephone number for verification. Anonymous letters will not be printed. Letters to the Editor and other articles on this page do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Cumberland County News publisher and staff.

To the editor:

The students, teachers, administrators, and support staff of the Cumberland County School System deserve praise for working diligently in their roles as educators for our students. Additionally, the members of the Cumberland County Board of Education are also deserving of praise for their devotion, responsibility, and outstanding educational leadership.

Mr. Lovell Grider, Mr. Danny Lee, Mr. Ben Sells, Mr. Greg Smith, and Mr. Terry Riley are more than just elected officials. In fact, they are the link between the school district's citizens and its schools. They routinely make some tough decisions, set policy for the district, and create the conditions that enable students to succeed. In their individual walks of life as residents here, they are also part of the fiber of our community.

The state of Kentucky has chosen to join other states in observing January as School Board Member Recognition Month, which is the 20th year in which it has done so. Our local school board members merit this appreciation.

As the demands of high-stakes accountability have increased for our schools, the job of our local school board members has likewise become increasingly complex requiring more time, training, and knowledge. They also must ensure the safety and maintenance of school buildings and buses, support teachers by making sure they have adequate professional development, lead the charge for programs that help students of every ability level, and closely monitor the finances of the school system. There is not a single aspect of overall district operation that isn't tied to the work of our board members.

I am pleased to join with other community members in thanking the members of our Cumberland County Board of Education this month for what they do on behalf of our children.

Sincerely,
Dr. Kirk Biggerstaff
Superintendent of Schools

Dear Editor:

Something important is going on right now in Cumberland County. Our Fiscal Court is in the process of passing an ordinance that will declare us to be a "right to work" county. In simplest terms that means no person will be required to join and support a labor union in order to work here.

In more complete terms it means that our Court is taking steps to reinstate one of our personal liberties that has been trampled upon by higher government.

At the moment Kentucky is the only southern state that is not "right to work" and our neighbor states, including Indiana and Tennessee, do protect citizens right to work. As a result many employers move out of state and others decline to set up shop in the first place. Not good for Kentucky breadwinners.

Attempts to correct the situation at state level have fallen on deaf ears. Since Frankfort has declined to rectify the situation the onus of responsibility has come down to county level. Four other counties have passed such ordinances and that means that our Fiscal Court has taken a position of early leadership in addressing the problem. Make no mistake. It takes a great level of initiative and responsibility, not to mention backbone, to take such an action in the face of organized political opposition. Our Court is fighting bureaucracy and in the course of recorded history no powerful and bloated bureaucracy has ever demonstrated even a smidgen of self-control and restraint.

Our Magistrates and Court Judge all deserve our thanks and admiration. Don't be quiet about it. I'm proud of them.

It was the day after Christmas that my traveling buddy, Molly Davis and I journeyed to Hoover, Alabama, a suburb of the large city of Birmingham. For it's in Hoover that Molly and Corky's grandson, Jeremy Davis is living, having moved there from Arizona three months ago.

After having had a Christmas resplendent with much Santa Claus, food and visitations with beloved family members, I'd looked forward to this "getting away for a while" time. And, finally after 3 hours of being lost in the suburbs of Birmingham, there we were at Jeremy's fine home, being greeted by Cathey Davis, Jeremy's stepmom. Cathey had been in Hoover the past week, caring for five dogs which belong to Jeremy and his friend Tyler. While they were on vacation, Cathey dog-sat.

While Molly and I were there for only three days, it seems that we covered lots of ground. We watched, on Saturday while eating at Applebee's, the UK/UL basketball game. Apparently both teams have tremendous followings, however far we roam and that was a prideful moment, to realize this. It was on Saturday that we did some shopping and attended Mass at a large and beautiful Catholic Church in the neighborhood. The church was packed and I noted there were many youth there which made us feel good.

It was on Sunday morning, after Jeremy and Tyler returned that we set out to see what we could find. It was a most enjoyable day, visiting stores and eating Chinese Cuisine at a very nice restaurant. Afterwards, we were privileged to tour the television station where Tyler is a Manager/Supervisor. I'd never toured a television station before and found it quite intriguing. I've included photos this week of our trip which included a visit to Vulcan National Park which overlooks the city of Birmingham although fog was so thick, we couldn't see what we wanted to see. At the end of the day, Tyler prepared dinner which was delicious. It was the following day, Monday, that Molly, Cathey and I hit the road for Kentucky. It was a wonderful little holiday we had in the outskirts of Birmingham and we're ready to accommodate Jeremy, when he again invites us.

HAPPY NEW YEAR, FOLKS!

Pictures this week include images of Molly, Cathey, Jeremy and me. The one I'm in was at the anchor's desk at the television station of which I spoke. The picture of the painting I made is of Jeremy's award winning photo, completed in Mrs. Charlotte Cash's Art Class when Jeremy was in high school. This painting is located at the head of the stairs of his house.

New Jersey Senate delays vote on assisted suicide bill

Submitted by the Right to Life of the Cumberlands group

New Jersey state senators backing a bill to legalize assisted suicide in the state have delayed the bill as they plan to wage an "educational campaign" to convince their colleagues.

Hours after a state Senate committee approved the assisted suicide bill for consideration by the full Senate, supporter and Senate President Stephen Sweeney said there would be no vote on Thursday, which is the last day of the 2014 session for the state Senate.

Marie Tasy, executive director of New Jersey Right to Life, told LifeSiteNews that disability advocates, her organization, and religious leaders -- as well as "individuals who were battling illness and disease but who were adamantly opposed to the bill" -- testified against the bill on Monday.

"Witnesses in opposition overwhelmingly outnumbered witnesses in favor," said Tasy. "The bill was released from committee by a vote of 5-3, [but] was released from committee without recommendation. [This] means that members voted to release but reserve their right to change their vote when it comes before the full Senate."

Tasy said that the bill would force taxpayers to fund assisted suicide "through Medicaid and, most likely, the state health exchange via Obamacare." She encouraged opponents of the bill to contact their state senators and New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie.

Minimum-wage proponents: Let's break a deal

By Jim Waters

A Gallup poll in 2013 found that a miserly 14 percent of Americans consider state officeholders "trustworthy."

That, of course, doesn't mean all politicians are untrustworthy. They aren't.

In fact, such polls really aren't about individual politicians as much as they serve as a kind of protest in favor of oft-discarded values -- such as when a man's word was his bond or when hard-fought politically negotiated agreements were honored.

Take, for example, the agreement reached on a minimum-wage increase during the 2007 session of the Kentucky General Assembly that led to passage of House Bill 305, which raised the state's minimum wage by $2.10 during the next two years to the current $7.25 (same as the federal rate) but tied future hikes to increases in the federal government's minimum wage.

The bill was the fruit of a challenging political compromise between those who wanted a larger increase than the final agreement and opponents of such government-mandated wage increases, particularly small-business owners, who received assurance of more certainty because of the limits placed on future hikes.

Opponents of minimum-wage increases also in the end went along with the measure because tying future upsurges in the state's minimum-wage rate to federal minimum-wage hikes would reduce the likelihood that the commonwealth would be placed at a greater competitive disadvantage with neighboring states.

Some current members of the legislature were in office at the time and voted for HB 305, including Nelson County Republican Rep. David Floyd.

"We made that deal; we satisfied both sides," Floyd said when asked recently on KET's "Kentucky Tonight" about a potential legislative battle over increasing the minimum wage during the upcoming 2015 session of the Kentucky General Assembly.

It's not even up for discussion, Floyd said.

"We came together in 2007 (and agreed that) we're going to raise the minimum wage every time the federal

Healthy Minds

A Weekly Column All About Mental Wellness
Adjustment Disorder

By Elliott B. Sewell
MAE, LPCC, NCC,
CCMHC

“The mentally ill frighten and embarrass us. Therefore, we marginalize the people who most need our acceptance. What mental health needs is more sunlight, more candor, more unashamed conversation.”

Adjustment Disorder

A client just contacted me. She had been having a hard time. In her words: “I really did come close on Christmas Eve to taking that bottle of pills. That scared me more than anything and that is why I was admitted to the psych unit. It was the best thing that I could have done as it was a caring and compassionate place. They listened and helped to point me in the right direction.”

They did address her depression, and then gave her medication for anxiety. However, the psychiatrist who diagnosed her did not listen to her history and diagnosed her with major depression. It is true that she was seriously depressed, but her depression comes and goes with the changing events of her life situation.

That is why there is a more appropriate diagnosis: Adjustment Disorder with Mixed Anxiety and Depressed Mood, would fit her better.

An adjustment disorder happens when a person cannot adjust or cope with life events that stress them beyond normal limits. They develop symptoms of depression (feeling hopeless, losing interest in life, crying, sleeping a great deal) as depressed people do. Theirs is situational depression or anxiety, and usually goes away when the stressor is resolved and they can adapt.

For some, it is acute (lasts less than six months) and for others it is chronic (more than six months). The subtypes of Adjustment Disorder are: with depressed mood; with anxiety; with mixed anxiety and depressed mood; with disturbance of conduct; with mixed disturbance of emotions and conduct, and; unspecified.

Adjustment Disorders are not just Depression or Anxiety or Conduct Disorder “Lite”, but can also lead to an increased risk of suicide attempts and completed suicides.

My client has been given an antidepressant (Wellbutrin) and an anti-anxiety medication (BuSpar), both of which are helping her.

As with all psychotropic medications, they all address and suppress the symptoms. The underlying stressors, however, must be identified and addressed in order to put an end to the cause of the symptoms. Hers is a difficult sister who makes too many demands, and a limited income for a retired woman on a fixed income. We are working on those issues and she is learning how to avoid making them an overblown issue by dealing with them effectively over time.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Some medications can change your sense of taste and make food taste unpleasant. The client discussed above is having that issue now, because of the effects that Wellbutrin has on her sense of taste. It makes her food taste unpleasant. For a list of medications which may affect your sense of taste, go to this website: <http://www.askdocweb.com/badtaste.html>

Poultry Production Questions

Farmers considering becoming a contract grower in the poultry industry need to fully understand these three issues.

- 1) No matter how good your performance, you are not guaranteed adequate chicks nor flocks per year to meet your obligations for the length of your indebtedness.
- 2) Your indebtedness will increase when industry improvements in feed to weight conversion require you to upgrade your facility.
- 3) For every grower getting extra pay, there’s another grower who is not: half of the growers are making less than the average.

Take your time. There’s no rush. Talk it over with your family, your attorney, your accountant.

Nothing’s perfect: find growers who will talk to you about problems.

Upcoming Activities at Your Library

Stop by and check out the mural-in-progress by our amazing local talent, Hannah Cooper.

By Liza Turner

The 2015 Reading Challenge is now underway! To participate, stop by the library and pick up a category form, read one book in each of the 17 categories, and write the title of the book on the form. You have until December 18 to read as many as you can. The patron who completes the most categories will receive a prize at the end of the year!

We are hosting a “Spa Day” on January 22 from 12-3! Stop by to make bath salts and lip balm and receive a massage from massage therapist, Audrey Murphy.

Universal Class, which gives participants access to over 500 continuing education courses, is now available through the CCPL website! As our library patron, these courses (which range from GED prep to photography classes to pet grooming tutorials) are completely FREE. To get started, you simply need to visit our website at <http://www.cumberlandcountylibrary.org>, click on the Universal Class banner under the “New at Your Library” section, and enter the complete barcode number on the back of your library card. If you have lost your library card, give us a call at 270-864-2207 and we can tell you what your number is.

If you are interested in checking out e-books, let us know! We are compiling a list of interested patrons as we speak. Once I submit the patron barcodes, those patrons will have access to thousands of books and audio books absolutely FREE of charge.

Any bookmobile patron who needs books picked up or dropped off can call us at (270) 864-2207 to arrange a convenient time. While our bookmobile is out of order, staff members are happy to deliver books in our personal vehicles any day of the week.

Have an interesting story to tell about an old country store in Cumberland County? We would love to start collecting photographs and written memories of your experiences in some of the stores you grew up in. If we receive enough, we plan to organize into a book that will be available for sale. You can submit stories and pictures to Liza at liza.ccpl@windstream.net.

If you have any old Cumberland County yearbooks that you no longer want, please consider bringing them to the library! We would love to keep a collection!

Thanks to CCES librarian, Amy Morgan, Cumberland County is now a participant in the Dolly Parton “Imagination Library” program. Through this program, preschool-age children in the county receive a free book every month in the mail from birth-kindergarten. Pick up registration forms at CCES or here at the public library!

Story Hour has moved to Thursdays at 10. Come for songs, snacks, crafts, and books! Mrs. Barbara also encourages you to bring your families on the 1st and 3rd Saturday to play games, watch movies, or do crafts!

If you are a local artist or photographer and are interested in displaying some of your work at the library, call Liza at 864-2207.

Reminder: Library board meetings are held on the second Thursday of each month at 4:00 pm at the library.

Deal

government wage goes up,” Floyd said. “That was the deal and we’re all prepared for that.”

However, Terry Mills, D-Lebanon, another panelist on the KET show, wants to break that deal since he doesn’t believe Washington is going to pass a minimum wage any time soon.

This despite the fact that before Mills even was elected, several legislators, including Floyd, voted for HB 305 because, while they oppose government telling business owners what they must pay workers, they were satisfied that future minimum-wage hikes could not occur just because some economic illiterates in Frankfort didn’t think Washington was moving fast enough.

Mills now presumably doesn’t believe that a deal’s a deal when it involves minimum-wage policies – although I suspect the reasonable and conservative folks in his district might disagree.

“We all know, I think – especially in the current political climate in Washington, D.C. – the minimum wage is not going to be raised, so I think we have an obligation to treat these people better,” Mills said.

Mills apparently believes that an agreement should be honored as long as the political environment favors his ideology. But when those conditions change to ones he doesn’t particularly care for, then he’s really under no obligation to uphold his end of an arrangement.

Along with the subtle, backhanded slam that the government in Frankfort would – as he stated – treat “these people better” than the business owners in Lebanon and across Kentucky who employ them, Mills seems to find himself in a quandary about deals made and deals broken.

When you understand the fact that Mills and the leadership of the Kentucky House would be in any kind of a dilemma at all about whether to keep an agreement like the accord reached on such a consequential policy like raising the minimum wage, then it becomes much clearer how state politicians could rank so low on taxpayers’ “trustworthy” meters.

An Encouraging Word: A Formula For Happiness

By Howard Coop
Lancaster, Kentucky

What do you want the year that is ahead to bring to you?

While a variety of words may be used to express it, most folk just want things to work out so that life will be pleasant and they will experience a reasonable amount of happiness.

Now, happiness has been defined as "Pleasure, joy, and contentment," and it is generally accepted that happiness, so defined, is within the grasp of any individual. A word from Dale Carnegie is apropos. He said, "Happiness doesn't depend on any external conditions, it is governed by our mental attitude." But Carnegie was not the first to express that idea. Socrates, the Greek philosopher who lived about 2,400 years ago, said the same thing but in fewer words, "Happiness depends upon ourselves." That's why Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folk are as happy as they make up their minds to be," and that is why George S. Merriam suggests that "Whether each day of your life shall give happiness... rests with yourself."

So, happiness does not depend upon things and events. The ability to find happiness is strength within the heart and mind of an individual that enables that individual to accept and properly react to things that happen and events that occur in daily life. Therefore, happiness will be yours if you pursue it in the right way.

Recently, I came across a formula for happiness in an old axiom that is, at least, twenty-five hundred years old. Therefore, time has given it some validity. It says, "Happiness comes to those who are fair to others and are always just and good." Many years ago F. W. Robertson wrote, "Kindly words, sympathizing attentions, watchfulness against wounding men's sensitiveness,---these cost little, but they are priceless in their value." Then, he continued by calling that, "the staple of our daily happiness."

So, you want to be happy? Then, make up your mind to be happy and let kindness be evident in your daily life.

Local students named to Somerset Community College Dean's List

Somerset Community College recently released the fall 2014 dean's List. The fall 2014 semester concluded in December. In total, 592 students were named to the list.

To be a member of the dean's list, a student must maintain a 3.5 grade point average and be a full-time student at Somerset Community College. A full-time student must take 12 credit hours during a semester, excluding developmental classes.

Local students named to the Dean's List were Allie Davidson and Christopher Dickens, both of Burkesville, and Sydney Franklin of Marrowbone.

The Church Still Marches On

Respect and honour of our mother in the Lord, Sis. Fannie Pace.

Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints. Psalm 116:15

The late Bro. Joe Pace
"Keep the Doors Open."

On January 11, 1980, the doors were opened at the Church of Our Lord Jesus Christ, on 250 Spencer Street. Established by the late Elder Joseph J. Pace. I'm sure there was a lot of hard work preparing for the doors to be opened. But God knew that He was going to send hungry souls to hear the true word of God, and the Lord did.

We were blessed that God let us have Elder Pace for so many years. Elder Pace was only borrowed. He belonged to God.

Some of the last words we heard Elder Pace say, "Keep the doors opened." And since his death on August 20th, 2010, by the help of the Lord, the doors are still open at 250 Spencer Street.

God has sent blessing after blessing. We want to thank everyone for their prayers and support. Continue to pray for us.

Livestock Disposal (Dead Animal Burial) Program

Jeff Mowers, Chairman of the Cumberland County Conservation District would like to announce that January 2015 Environmental Awareness is “Livestock Disposal (Dead Animal Burial) Program”.

The Cumberland County Conservation District received a $5,000 Environmental Grant to help implement this project. We invite you to utilize this program.

Kentucky has nearly 3 million cattle, swine, and goats in the state. With high numbers of animals and a mortality rate of 3 to 5 percent, disposal of animal carcasses can be a cause for concern.

Improper disposal of animal carcasses can contaminate drinking water sources and / or spread disease. Kentucky state law provides guidance for animal carcass disposal in effort to protect Kentucky's water resources and its citizens.

Dead animals should be disposed of within 48 hours of death and in accordance with Kentucky Agriculture Water Quality Act Livestock BMP #15. (Dead Animal Disposal - methods approved by the state veterinarian that are legally and environmentally acceptable, including incineration, boiling, burying, rendering, placing in a landfill or composting).

This service is available to all livestock producers (without charge) that are within the boundaries of Cumberland County. This program is administrated through the Fiscal Court. When you have a fallen (dead) animal, please call 864-3444 for more information.

For more information on other programs that may be available, please contact the Cumberland County Conservation District at 329 Keen Street or call 864-2606, Monday – Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Hidden Treasures “CONSTRAINED BY LOVE”

2 Corinthians 5:14-15 - For the love of Christ constraineth us, because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then we're all dead. And that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them and rose again.

Definition of Constrain - To force by imposed stricture, restriction, or limitation, compel, confine, to withhold or restrain by force.

We as Christians, have been constrained by the love of Christ, confined and compelled to a straight gate and a narrow way. Forced to walk in his steps, restricted to the ways of holiness, godliness, righteousness.

A city sits on a hill, shining a light of holiness to a lost world. Letting the love of Christ shine through us as a ray of hope, blinding and binding the forces of sin and hypocrisy. That leads to destruction.

With a willing heart we should love to walk in his sinless steps. A true mountain climber will not go to the Smokies to climb. He will settle for no less than the summit of Mt. Everest, the pinnacle of the world.

“Do we love Christ?” When loving Christ we love holiness, godliness, righteousness.

The true love for Christ will compel a climber to scale the rough side of the mountain, to touch the face of God. He will not allow the rocks of sin and the wolves of hypocrisy to stand in his way. Sin and hypocrisy are only a hill for a true climber. They have a love for the fresh clean air of the rough side of the straight and narrow, leading the eternal life.

Constrained by the Love of Christ, and Loving It.

44-year-old Tony Gaddie and 25-year-old Christopher Medcalfe, both of Horse Cave, KY

23-year-old Shawn Abner of London, KY

45-year-old Johnny Poynter of Cave City, KY.

All were lodged in the Clinton County Jail. The investigation is ongoing.

Candidate filing deadline for 2015 primary election is January 27

Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes is reminding persons interested in being a candidate in the 2015 Primary Election that the deadline to file with her office is later this month. Candidates who wish to be placed on the ballot for the May 19, 2015, Primary Election must file their candidacy papers by 4 p.m. EST at the Office of Secretary of State on Tuesday, January 27.

The offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Attorney General, Auditor of Public Accounts, State Treasurer, and Commissioner of Agriculture are on the ballot in Kentucky in 2015.

"I recommend that candidates file in advance of the deadline in case filing papers need to be corrected," said Grimes, Kentucky's chief election official. Kentucky law does not provide an opportunity to correct or re-file paperwork after 4 p.m. on January 27.

Candidates may access the filing forms required at <http://app.sos.ky.gov/ElectionsDYC/>.

Local Blood Drive is Thursday, Jan. 8th

Want a shocker? Did you know that 400 pints of blood must be donated every single day of the year in central and eastern Kentucky? That's how much blood is needed at 67 hospitals and clinics in this half of the state.

The Kentucky Blood Center wants you to know that the blood you donate here stays here, helping a fellow Kentuckian through a trauma, an accident, surgery, cancer treatment, burn recovery, and more.

The Kentucky Blood Center will hold a blood drive on Thursday, January 8 from 11 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. at Living Word Ministries Church in the multi-purpose room.

You don't need to be super human to donate blood – just be over 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in general good health. You can be in and out in about an hour and you can donate every 56 days.

Help save a life. KBC will even give you a free snack, drink and t-shirt, but more importantly, we'll give you a great feeling! In addition to that, Citizens Bank of Cumberland County and Subway are once again teaming up to give every donor a coupon for a six inch meal deal from Subway of Burkesville.

For more information, contact your Community Blood Drive Coordinator, Misty Dubre at 433-7700.

Deadline Extended to Apply for EPA's 2015 Environmental Justice Small Grants Program

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has extended the deadline for eligible non-profit groups and tribal communities to apply for the 2015 Environmental Justice Small Grants (EJSG) Program. The EJSG Program provides funding for projects that help communities understand and address exposure to multiple environmental harms and risks at the local level. The application deadline has been extended from Dec. 15, 2014, to Jan. 9, 2015.

EPA recognizes the critical role of helping communities with localized strategies to avoid, lessen, or delay the risks and impacts associated with our changing climate. As a result, this year's EJSG Program will have a special emphasis on proposals supporting community-based preparedness and resilience efforts (community climate resiliency). In an effort to ensure that support reaches new areas, the Agency also is prioritizing funding to organizations that have not recently received an award under the EJSG Program.

The total estimated amount of funding available for awards under this solicitation for fiscal year 2015 is approximately $1.2 million. EPA anticipates awarding up to four grants per EPA region in amounts of up to $30,000 per award for a two-year project period.

Potential applicants in the Southeast who have questions about the application process may contact Deborah Carter, EPA Region 4's Grants Coordinator, at 404-562-9668, or carter.deborah@epa.gov.

More information regarding the Environmental Justice Small Grants Program, including the Request for Applications and descriptions of previously funded grants: <http://www.epa.gov/environmentaljustice/grants/ej-smgrants.html>

Deadline for all items is Monday at 5 p.m.

USDA Provides Greater Protection for Fruit, Vegetable and Other Specialty Crop Growers

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack today announced that greater protection is now available from the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program for crops that traditionally have been ineligible for federal crop insurance. The new options, created by the 2014 Farm Bill, provide greater coverage for losses when natural disasters affect specialty crops such as vegetables, fruits, mushrooms, floriculture, ornamental nursery, aquaculture, turf grass, ginseng, honey, syrup, and energy crops.

“These new protections will help ensure that farm families growing crops for food, fiber or livestock consumption will be better able to withstand losses due to natural disasters,” said Vilsack. “For years, commodity crop farmers have had the ability to purchase insurance to keep their crops protected, and it only makes sense that fruit and vegetable, and other specialty crop growers, should be able to purchase similar levels of protection. Ensuring these farmers can adequately protect themselves from factors beyond their control is also critical for consumers who enjoy these products and for communities whose economies depend on them.”

Previously, the program offered coverage at 55 percent of the average market price for crop losses that exceed 50 percent of expected production. Producers can now choose higher levels of coverage, up to 65 percent of their expected production at 100 percent of the average market price.

The expanded protection will be especially helpful to beginning and traditionally underserved producers, as well as farmers with limited resources, who will receive fee waivers and premium reductions for expanded coverage. More crops are now eligible for the program, including expanded aquaculture production practices, and sweet and biomass sorghum. For the first time, a range of crops used to produce bioenergy will be eligible as well.

“If America is to remain food secure and continue exporting food to the world, we need to do everything we can to help new farmers get started and succeed in agriculture,” Vilsack said. “This program will help new and socially disadvantaged farmers affordably manage risk, making farming a much more attractive business proposition.”

To help producers learn more about the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program and how it can help them, USDA, in partnership with Michigan State University and the University of Illinois, created an online resource. The Web tool, available at www.fsa.usda.gov/nap, allows producers to determine whether their crops are eligible for coverage. It also gives them an opportunity to explore a variety of options and levels to determine the best protection level for their operation.

If the application deadline for an eligible crop has already passed, producers will have until Jan. 14, 2015, to choose expanded coverage through the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program. To learn more, visit the Farm Service Agency (FSA) website at www.fsa.usda.gov/nap or contact your local FSA office at offices.usda.gov. The Farm Service Agency (FSA), which administers the program, also wants to hear from producers and other interested stakeholders who may have suggestions or recommendations on the program. Written comments will be accepted until Feb. 13, 2015 and can be submitted through www.regulations.gov.

These new provisions under the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program were made possible through the 2014 Farm Bill, which builds on historic economic gains in rural America over the past five years, while achieving meaningful reform and billions of dollars in savings for the taxpayer. Since enactment, USDA has made significant progress to implement each provision of this critical legislation, including providing disaster relief to farmers and ranchers; strengthening risk management tools; expanding access to rural credit; funding critical research; establishing innovative public-private conservation partnerships; developing new markets for rural-made products; and investing in infrastructure, housing and community facilities to help improve quality of life in rural America. Kentucky needs anti-smoking legislation

By Tina McCormick

Last year, we had many letters to the editor written urging Kentuckians to become engaged in the Smoke-Free Legislation. As the Executive Director of the Kentucky Rural Health Association, I am requesting all Kentuckians, to contact your elected state officials to support a strong, statewide, smoke-free workplace law during the 2015 Kentucky General Assembly session.

It's time for Kentucky to join the growing number of states, counties, and cities that have enacted smoke-free laws that apply to all workplaces and public places, including restaurants and bars. Twenty-four states and nearly 500 municipalities have enacted such laws. Nearly half of the U.S. population now lives in areas with this important health protection.

Regrettably, many residents and workers in Kentucky do not yet have the right to breathe clean, smoke-free air. Too often when they enter a workplace or public establishment, Kentuckians are still exposed to harmful secondhand smoke, which contains more than 7,000 chemicals, including hundreds that are toxic and at least 70 that are proven to cause cancer. In addition to the danger to public health, secondhand smoke also harms Kentucky's business image. That's why the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce has joined hundreds of health and medical organizations and community groups in supporting a state law to make all indoor workplaces smoke-free.

The good news is that about 31% of Kentuckians are protected by comprehensive, smoke-free laws or regulations passed at the city or county level. These laws are an appropriate response from local leaders to the overwhelming scientific evidence that secondhand smoke is a serious health hazard that causes heart disease, lung cancer, and other serious illnesses. As smoke-free laws have spread, the evidence in Kentucky is that these laws protect health without harming business in bars, restaurants, and other hospitality venues.

As Kentucky legislators again prepare to consider smoke-free legislation, I want to share with you the evidence that secondhand smoke is hazardous to human health and that smoke-free laws protect health without harming business. I also want to share information about the Kentucky Rural Health Association, and other members of the Smoke-Free Kentucky coalition, advocating for a comprehensive, smoke-free law that applies to all workplaces and public places and is free of exemptions that would leave some people exposed.

Secondhand smoke is a serious health hazard

There is now overwhelming and irrefutable evidence that secondhand smoke harms human health. As the U.S. Surgeon General stated when releasing a landmark 2006 report on secondhand smoke, “The debate is over. The science is clear. Secondhand smoke is a serious health hazard that causes premature death and disease in children and non-smoking adults.” In 2010, the Surgeon General's Report confirmed that even a little bit of tobacco smoke causes damage to DNA, blood vessels, and lung tissue. The Surgeon General's conclusions from both reports include:

Secondhand smoke is a toxic mix of more than 7,000 chemicals that attack every organ in the body.

Secondhand smoke causes lung cancer and heart disease in non-smoking adults and respiratory and ear infections, more severe asthma attacks, sudden infant death syndrome, and low birth weight in children. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly 50,000 Americans die each year from lung cancer and heart disease caused by secondhand smoke exposure.

There is no safe level of exposure to secondhand smoke. Even brief exposure can trigger immediate, harmful changes in the cardiovascular system that increase risk of heart attack or stroke.

The only way to protect non-smokers from secondhand smoke is to require smoke-free workplaces and public places. Other approaches, such as air ventilation systems and smoking and non-smoking sections, do not work.

These findings lead to one clear conclusion: no one should have to put up with the serious health risks of secondhand smoke in order to earn a living or enjoy an evening at a bar or restaurant.

Smoke-free laws protect health without harming business

As we debate smoke-free legislation, opponents continue to make the usual, unfounded arguments that smoke-free laws hurt business. These arguments are not supported by the facts. Dozens of scientific studies and the experience of the growing number of smoke-free states and cities all show the same thing: smoke-free laws at worst have no impact on the restaurant and bar business and even have a positive impact in some cases. This conclusion is based on comparisons of objective economic data, such as employment, sales, and profits, before and after smoke-free laws take effect. As the Surgeon General's 2006 report concluded, “Evidence from peer-reviewed studies shows that smoke-free policies and regulations do not have an adverse economic impact on the hospitality industry.”

In Lexington, which went smoke-free in April 2004, a study concluded, “In general, selected key business indicators in Lexington restaurants, bars and hotels have not been affected by the smoke-free law.” The same was true of an economic study that examined the economic impact on northern Kentucky border counties when Ohio went smoke-free.

These findings are not surprising given the strong public support for smoke-free laws and strong preference for smoke-free establishments. A 2014 poll found that Kentucky voters support a statewide smoke-free law by a 65% to 29% margin. The Zagat Survey, the authoritative survey of restaurant dining trends, has consistently found that consumers strongly prefer smoke-free restaurants. The 2008 Zagat Survey of 132,000 Americans showed 77% of diners said they'd eat out less if smoking were permitted in local restaurants, and only 2% saying they'd dine out more.

Smoke-free laws that are comprehensive are also the most effective Kentucky can learn from other states that passed partial, smoke-free laws in the past. Many were challenged in the courts, often because they exempted certain businesses, forcing states to fund costly legal battles. When exemptions have not been overturned, states often have a difficult time with enforcement due to confusion over which businesses are covered and which have been granted an exemption. They often have costly and complicated systems for approving exemptions and conducting compliance checks. When all indoor workplaces are covered, the law is easily understood and the public and business owners are often required to do little more than ask smokers to step outside.

In summary, smoke-free laws have been unmitigated and popular successes here in Kentucky at the local level and virtually everywhere they have been implemented. Comprehensive laws protect everyone equally, achieve nearly universal compliance, and improve air quality and the health of workers almost immediately. Finally, the hospitality industry thrives – despite claims to the contrary – and the public appreciates smoke-free laws.

To contact your elected state officials and let them know that you support the smoke-free initiative, visit www.lrc.ky.gov or call 1-800-372-7181.

We welcome comparison

Some funeral homes charge more for their services, less for caskets, some charge more for caskets, less for services...

This can be confusing when you are comparing.

We recommend you get the total in writing for the preferences you make for your funeral arrangements...

And when all is totaled you will find that we are fairly priced on the total of any services offered by firms in this region.

IN MEMORY

In Loving Memory of Elder Joseph J. Pace

He would have had a birthday on January 4, 2015. Still greatly missed, but not forgotten. Your memory still lives on in our hearts.

Wife, family, friends, Church family

I'm Only Away

When I'm gone, hold me close
I'm not gone, I'm just away
When you don't see me
I'm not gone, I'm just away
When you cry, remember my smile
When you held my hand
I'm not gone, I'm just away.
When your dark days come
Look up to Jesus and remember
I'm not gone, I'm just away.
My precious ones,
Remember I wouldn't just leave you alone
I'd stay here, but God called my name, I had to go away.
So remember, I'm not gone, I'm just away.
By Sister Sandra Pace

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Nannie Myrtle Reliford would like to say "Thank You", especially to Dr. Flowers and Cumberland County's Hospital staff. We appreciate each nurse and aide that directly cared for Ms. Nannie. Our family wanted to thank you for all your compassion and kindness during the tough times.

Thank you very much, Ms. Nannie and Reliford family

IN MEMORY

In Memory of J.C. Watson

It's been two years since God called you away. Remembering you is easy, I do it every day. The days are often lonely, and hard on me to bare, but I know you are happy with no pain anywhere. You left us beautiful memories, your love is still our guide. Although we cannot see you, you are always by our side. We laugh, we talk, we play our part, but behind our smiles are broken hearts. Someday we will meet again, where we never will grow old, to be with Jesus and walk the streets of gold.

Sadly missed by your family
